

concrete

abstract

Types of Foreshadowing

prophecy

fallacy

concrete

objects, people, places, colors, and events

not obvious until you look back or read again

abstract

senses! thoughts/feelings a character has, the way a character acts,
weather, mood,
subtle hints

Types of Foreshadowing

a prophecy, or fortune, is stated; may be unclear at the time how, but it ends up coming true

(Red Herring) - a smoke screen used to mislead/distract the reader

prophecy

fallacy

Types of Foreshadowing in The Monkey's Paw concrete

As Mr. White wished,
the monkey's paw
twisted in his hand.

abstract

When the story
begins, it is a cold and wet night and the wind is blowing
fiercely.

prophecy

According to the
sergeant-major, an old fakir put a spell
on the monkey's paw
that would show that fate ruled people's lives, and those who interfered with it did so to their sorrow.

fallacy

The next morning,
the sun is shining
bright and the mood
at breakfast is wholesome and cheerful.